ON THE R. M.

An estimate of the loss of the soluble portions of manure that is exposed to rains and the direct rays of the sun, if it could be made, would show that one-half of its value is lost by leeching, fire-fanging, etc.

In a dry season there is no fertilizer which produces better results with potatoes than wood ashes, notwithstanding the fact that ashes seem to dry themselves. Equally good results will follow when they are sprinkled on the strawberry bed.

The mistake of keeping and using crossbred males aids materially in degenerating the hogs on many farms. The boar should be a thoroughbred, or there will be no uniformity in the offspring. There is little pleasure in raising mongrels.

It is claimed that the use of ensilage enables the dairyman to keep twice as many cows as when no ensilage is used. There is no crop so easily grown and at so small an outlay for labor as ensilage corn, and it not only provides a large addition to the bulky foods, but enables the dairyman to give succulent food in winter, thus keeping the animals in good condition.

Navy beans can be grown profitably, and they bring as good prices as any other crop. The heaviest yields are secured when they are carefully cultivated and grown on ground that has been well manured the previous year. The harvesting of the crop is the critical work with them, as they are liable to damage if exposed to rains after harvesting them, but there is machinery now in use which lessens the labor and makes them as sure as any other crop.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

According to the experiments of M. Seguy and M. Quenisset the X-rays cause dangerous palpitations of the heart. The experiments were made on medical students and upon themselves, and M. Seguy and M. Quenisset describe the palpitations as violent and unendurable unless the rays were intercepted by a metallic plate.

Alaska, our remarkable outlying territory, is almost as large in area as the entire United States east of the Mississippi. It is rich in mineral wealth, and has already yielded many times its cost in the precious and other metals. Every year its value to the United States is increasing, and yet it is entirely isolated from the rest of our territory—just as Cuba would be were we to acquire it.

"Alcohol," said M. Martindale, in a paper read recently before the Pharmaceutical society, "is not a germicide. When present to the extent of 20 per cent, by volume of absolute alcohol, it has an inhibitory effect on the germination of most of the micro-organisms occurring in aqueous solutions of vegetables and animal substances; but the germs propagate readily as it evaporates."

Naturalists consider it a wonderful fact that the Bermuda islands have only seven native species of land birds, while no less than 128 species pay visits to the islands. Many of these visitors are birds which pass the summer in the United States, and utilize the Bermuda islands as a convenient winter resort, thus imitating some of their human compatriots. Even some American bats follow the example of the birds by wintering in the Bermudas.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

The American Queen for June is a recreation number and has several stunning pictures of noted New York women prominent in various sports.

Every Month has a fascinating array of pictures of pretty women, famous people, literary gossip and good photographs. There is also music to be found for the looking.

The Month has a tempting lot of gossip about people who write books, their latest works and peculiarities. Edith Thomas' poem is especially good and the large number of portraits adds to the value of the issue.

Mr. Richard Harding Davis' first novel, "Soldiers of Fortune," just published by Scribner's, was in its second edition over a week before it appeared, the advance orders speedily exhausting the first edition of 15,000 copies.

"When Did John Cabot Discover America?" asks Prof. Henry H. Harris to the extent of 12 pages in the Forum. Prof. Harris is a noted Frenchman and an authority on things American and he concludes in the last paragraph that Cabot's discovery fell on June 24, 1497.

Dr. Charles W. Purdy writes in the North American Review on popular errors in living and says that in the near future energies will be directed toward the art of mastering disease. The marquis of Lorne is a distinguished contributor and, of course, directs his thoughts to remarks on Victoria's reign.

ERIE MEDICAL CO., 64 NIAGARA ST.

When the appetite fails there is no use in trying to tempt the palate with delicate food. No matter how good and well-cooked and "appetizing" the food may be, it cannot give any nourishment unless the stomach is able to digest it. Nature indicates the state of the constitution by the loss of appetite. This is an unfailing indicator. It shows that something is fundamentally wrong with the nutritive functions.

The only true natural relief must be as searching and fundamental as the trouble it aims to overcome. It is the thorough deep-seated character of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which causes the marvelous efficacy in all bilious and digestive difficulties. It creates that healthful vitality of the entire digestive and nutritive organism which produces both the natural desire for food and the organic capacity to assimilate and transform it into nourishing, revivifying blood and healthy tissue. It gives appetite, digestion and sound sleep, and builds up solid muscular strength and vital nerve-energy.

H. H. Thompson, Esq., of P. O. Box 4, Kippie, Blair Co., Penn'a., writes: "I had been troubled with extreme vomiting in summer season, always after eating, had to be very careful at times to get anything to stay on my stomach at all, had been taking other medicines, but without effect. I heard a friend speak of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and thought I would give it a trial. I used about five bottles of it and think it is the only medicine that did me any good, as I have a splendid appetite now, and am not using any medicine at all and don't think I need any more."

A man who is suffering from the evil effects of constipation doesn't feel like work, and can't even enjoy his leisure hours. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, swift, safe, and permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dishonest druggists try to get you to take a substitute for the sake of the added profit.

bill for an injunction against the led Mine Workers has been filed in local court at Pittsburg, Penn., by New York and Cleveland Gas Coal ppany. Judge Collier granted a porary injunction restraining and oining the miners from assembling, eching or camping in proximity to mines and houses of the company the purpose of intimidation, threats, assing opprobrious words and pre- tting the miners of the company m working.

he injunction, which is regarded as most sweeping yet issued, will be rd on next Monday. Though it is not, like that of Judge Jackson in Dabs case, deny the freedom of eech to the citizen, it is a direct ust at the liberty guaranteed by Federal Constitution and by every ate Constitution to the people. If rectly stated in the press dis- ches it is a deliberate attempt to wn corporate greed as ruler upon ruins of our republic and its author ould be impeached for high crimes mledemeanors and dismissed from office which he disgraces. That acts will be annulled and that his nduct will be rebuked by the highest icial tribunal in the country, if an opportunity is given it, there is no ubt. Every considerate mind must ard with fear and trembling for the rpetuity of our republican form of vement, the encroachments and urpations and controlling influence corporate greed in many of the de- rtments of government, both State d Federal. When peaceable means all utterly fail to restore the Gov- nment to what its founders intended should be, and the people have de- mined that forbearance ceases to be virtue and that patriotism and self- ervation demand more potent eans to preserve our liberty and uality before the law, then Lord ve mercy on the conspirators, their dges, aiders and abettors, for the ighteous wrath of the masses will be eted out to them without mercy. But the miners are not deterred by e injunction from keeping up their marches on the public roads. They e determined to test the validity of e order of court and as fast as one oup is arrested another will take its ace until public opinion is aroused and the jails are filled to overflowing. While the families of the striking iners are suffering from hunger they e but little worse off than when the en were at work, as they were paid ily starvation wages. They are being pplied with corn meal by firms in rious parts of the country and the hermen of Astoria, Oregon, have nt them a hundred cases of canned imon. They should endure all sorts privations, and under no circum- ances resort to violence, as their suc- s depends upon keeping the peace. violation of the law will result in eir defeat, for the moment there is e slightest pretext for calling out the ilitary, gatlung guns will be trained a their camps. Government by in- unction, though oppressive for the me, is not countenanced by the peo- ple and will not be sanctioned by the igher courts; but if the strikers re- rt to violence, however great the pro- cation, they will lose the sympathy of the people and they will have the, rong arm of the law against them, and Federal troops, as was proved in e great railroad strike a few years go, obey orders.

NEWLANDS FOR SILVER.

The speech of Congressman New- lands, which appears in full in the ongressional Record of July 24th, and xtracts from which are being pub- shed in the JOURNAL, shows that he is for bimetalism. What he has aid in favor of the restoration of ilver to its historic place as a money etal is true and irrefutable, though e and every advocate should abandon e cause of silver to-morrow and give e gold conspirators full sway in very State in the Union. Mr. Newlands cannot be charged ith being a demagogue. He does not alk to the galleries in Congress or hen campaigning. He is considerate nd conservative. He knows the mean- ng of words and gives each its full eight. He understands his subject nd presents it in a logical and con- ining manner. His speech was de- ivered in a Congress in which the gold en predominated, yet none took up he gauntlet which he threw down and his statements are uncontradicted. If hose statements were undeniable facts hen expressed in Congress they are rofitable now as then, though every ilver man in the country should abandon the cause for which he has een contending. If the free coinage of gold and silver for the public were ssential to the permanent prosperity of the country a month or a year ago it is just as essential to-day. Mr. Newlands' speech is clear, conse- quent and logical. He is an acknowledged authority on monetary and economic easures. He has given both subjects much attention and the decline in the price of silver, which is attributable to the closing of the mints of the United States and of Europe to the metal, and the advance in the price of wheat, which is due to the failure of crops in three of the great grain growing coun- tries of the world, do not disprove a single argument which he has advanced in favor of the remonetization of silver, as being essential to the restoration and maintenance of prosperity.

A THREE THOUSAND DOLLAR BLAZE

The structure formerly known as the Becker Bottling Works Destroyed.

Shortly after 8 o'clock last evening the cry of fire from various directions startled the town, and a moment later the fire bell began its clatter. The blaze was in the large wooden structure immediately back of the Masonic hall and which was originally built by the late Geo. Becker for a bottling works, but subsequently used as a black-smithing shop and occupied by David Nelson.

When the fire was discovered, the whole interior of the building seemed to be in flames and before the depart- ment could get a stream on, the shell, for it was little else, was doomed. The fire boys gave their attention to keeping the fire from spreading to ad- joining buildings and did good work.

David Nelson could not give any in- formation as to how the fire originated. He was in the building and barely es- caped with his life. He claims that he was lying down, but was not asleep. He says if he had been asleep he would not have escaped.

He seems to think that someone set the place on fire, claiming that an at- tempt to burn it up has been made two or three times. In fact, he called Chief Hodgkinson's and Officer Nash's attention to a large bundle of straw that was placed against one of its rear walls several nights ago, and which Nelson believes to have been put there for the purpose of setting fire to the place.

Others say that Nelson had a cook- ing stove in the basement where he cooked his meals, and the fire when first discovered seemed to be in this particular quarter of the building.

Nelson lost his stock, tools, personal effects and books, and claims his loss will reach nearly $1,000. Sauer & Grob used the annex or ice house at the rear of the building to store ice and lost about five or eight tons of ice. Mrs. Geo. Becker's loss on the building will probably reach $2,000, partly insured. A small shack on the alley occupied by a Chinaman was also destroyed, loss nominal.

Chris Nelson, who was a former owner in the shop and who had sold to David Nelson, seems to be the greatest sufferer by the fire. He lost his cloth- ing, bedding, and a lot of personal effects, besides holding a chattel mort- gage on the stock and tools. He had been working in the shop during the day and says that there had not been any fire in the building up to the time he left to go to supper. David Nelson, the proprietor, had not been around the place during the afternoon.

The building occupied the exact lot where the big fire of March 2, 1879, had its origin, and it recalled the circum- stances of that great conflagration vividly to the minds of many.

A Beautiful Cottage.

Ed Coffin has just completed a beau- tiful cottage on Fifth street and is now moving in. The house is fitted with all of the modern improvements and the rooms are finished up in the latest style of the decorative art. The Por- teous Decorative Company did the work and in every detail it is ex- ceptionally fine.

The wood work is shown in its natural grain and color, having been sandpapered and smoothed down to a glasslike surface, then covered with a specially prepared shellac-varnish that hardens and prevents any ordinary scratch or marring.

The walls of part of the rooms are beautifully tiled, while in others the skim coat of plaster is covered with heavy paper. The bath-room is finished with a granite paper and var- nished so that the walls and ceiling can be scrubbed without danger of injury. The walls of the kitchen, closets, pan- tries, etc., are finished with what is called tile work, which can be easily cleaned and at the same time being almost impervious to grease and very durable. All in all the decorative work is far ahead of the usual standard and really introduces a new system in Reno in that line of work. The Messrs. Porteous are thorough workmen and can be relied upon in fulfilling con- tracts to the letter.

Allen Bragg had considerable fun at the expense of the senior editor of the JOURNAL in yesterday evening's issue of the Gazette. After he reads Senator Stewart's emphatic denial of the truthfulness of the reported interview regarding the silver question in this morning's JOURNAL, Bragg will need the back and not the senior editor of the JOURNAL.

Bragg's hopes will be dissipated this morning and his longing for the "public crib" that for the moment seemed so near will become more intense as he sees the aforesaid crib vanishing in the murky atmosphere of doubt and oblivion. Never mind, Allen, you have company, there are others, and in hours like these how sweet it is to have a fellow feeling and sympathize with some other disappointed individual.

PROTECTION AND SILVER.

[Extracts from the speech of Congressman Newlands delivered in the House of Representatives, July 24, 1897, continued from yesterday's issue.]

WILL THE STRUGGLE FOR GOLD CONTINUE?

Now, have the countries got through with their struggle for gold? Ab, we are told that this country must retire all its paper money, all its greenbacks, all its silver certificates and Treasury notes, which are constructed by the Department to be demand notes for gold, and that we are to have bank currency substituted, with gold as redemption money. Did you ever think what a large reserve of gold would be required for this purpose, and do you realize that there is not a debtor nation in the world to-day, with the exception of the United States, that has any large amount of uncovered paper money out that has been able to maintain gold redemption?

The United States has only been able to do it by issuing gold bonds, which constitutes the premium for gold that this country has paid for the maintenance of the gold standard. That is true of Russia, struggling to get upon the gold standard; of Austria, struggling to get upon the gold standard; of Italy, Portugal, Spain, Brazil, Chile, all these nations which have got upon the gold standard or have signified their desire to do so, and are endeavoring to-day to secure gold with which to make gold redemption. In none of these countries are they able to redeem their paper money with gold. You have here, then, this extraordinary famine for gold, a gradual discontinuance of the use of silver, a gradual substitution of gold as the only primary money, the only money of redemption, the only money constituting a solid basis for the credit system of the various nations of the world. Can you wonder that every unit of that gold has gone up, and that every unit of products and property has gone down?

COMPETITION OF SILVER COUNTRIES.

Now, this has had another effect, and that is, the depreciation of silver has stimulated the comparative production of silver countries. Here I come to the most disastrous cause of the low prices of our cotton and of our wheat. It is easy enough to account for the prostration of our mining States. Silver has gone down, and so the basic industry of those States has been seriously impaired; but the cause of the lowering of the price of wheat and cotton is a little more remote, and you will find that its source is in the competitive production of countries that are not upon the gold standard.

Now, what are those countries? First and notably, Argentina and India. This is the statement of all statisticians and of all consults in foreign countries, and of travelers, that silver has maintained a stable purchasing power in the countries in which it is the money.

In India silver will purchase as much of labor and of domestic products and domestic property as it ever would. Wages remain stable in silver countries. They are hardly conscious that gold exists; and so, whilst the gold price of silver has been steadily declining, they have not been conscious of it, and have been willing to accept the same old price for their wheat, their cotton, and their labor.

We have, then, these countries competing with us in the Liverpool market for the sale of their farm products. The old price of silver was $1.29 in gold. That ounce of silver for years would buy a bushel of wheat in India. The Liverpool merchant was accustomed, until the recent famine in India, to buy silver from our discarded mines, 2 ounces for $1.29 in gold, and with it get two bushels of wheat where he once got one. The result is that the American farmer is compelled to compete with the Indian farmer in the Liverpool market and must come down to the same relative price in gold, and he has been compelled to accept 65 cents a bushel, or less, for his wheat; and so it has been with cotton and other farm products.

But we were told during the last election the price of wheat went up whilst the price of silver went down. This only proves the contention as the exception proves the rule. Recollect that we had been suffering from the competition of silver countries. The wheat famine in India destroyed the competition of that country, so that our wheat went up. This competitive cause being removed, the English merchants could not buy Indian wheat, and had no occasion to buy American wheat with which to pay for it; and so the market for our wheat was diminished and our silver temporarily went down. Should the wheat crop of Argentina fail, similar results would follow, wheat would go up, our silver would go down. But restore the old conditions, restore the normal product of the silver countries, and you have the old competitive force still at work, and the price of wheat, cotton, and other farm products sympathetic with the price of silver, and gold absolutely dominating the price of the farm products in this country.

MANUFACTURING COMPETITION. I wish to ask you what hope is there if we continue in this line? Recollect that we have thus far met only the agricultural competition of silver countries. The manufacturing competition of these countries is now being stimulated by the maintenance of the low value of silver. It is easily accounted for. England was supplying the entire Orient with manufactured goods. The people of the Orient were accustomed to change their silver into gold at the

"ABSOLUTELY FALSE."

Senator Wm. M. Stewart Thus Brands the
Reported Interviews.The Dream of the Nevada Republican Federal Office
Contingent Ends in a Hideous Nightmare.

The JOURNAL received the following telegram from Senator Wm. M. Stewart at a late hour last night:

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 13, 1897, 9:10 P. M.

STATE JOURNAL, Reno, Nevada:—I had no interview with the New York "Times" on the subject of silver or finance. All the publications with regard to me are absolutely false. This morning I denied them in the New York "Journal" and the New York "Times." There appears to have been a conspiracy to misrepresent me and my colleague. Neither of us have given out the interviews reported, or any other interview at variance with our life-long devotion to the free and unlimited coinage of silver by the United States alone, at the ratio of 16 to 1.

WM. M. STEWART.

old ratio of 15½ or 16 to 1. They now find that they are compelled to surrender twice as much silver as they did for gold in order to pay for foreign products imported into these countries. They have been reluctant to turn their silver into gold at this great loss; and so domestic production has been stimulated, and the construction of cotton mills, woolen mills and silk mills has been going on in these silver-standard countries—in India, in China, Japan, in Mexico—and all of them show the most startling evidences of prosperity as compared with the prostration of gold standard countries.

I ask, gentlemen, what country will the manufactured product of the cheap labor of the silver-standard countries, made doubly cheap by the depreciation of silver, first attack? The country of the highest wages. You are to-day erecting a tariff wall around the United States for the purpose of protecting us against the cheaper European labor, whose countries are upon a gold standard. What tariff will can you erect short of absolute exclusion—and that is, of course, impossible—against the manufactured products of the cheaper labor of the silver countries, made doubly cheap by the decline of the gold price of silver?

For my part, I believe that the daily wage rests at the foundation of all values in this country. I believe that all values of all properties depend for value on the maintenance of the daily wage. It is the daily wage that enters into every product and property. Products and property simply represent stored labor, and when you lower wages, you lower every value, you lower the price of every product and the price of every class of property in the country, because other products and other property can be produced or constructed under the lower wage system at a great advantage and for a less price. Hence stability of values depends upon the maintenance of the daily wage.

It is for that reason that I am a protectionist. I realize the fact that the only way to protect this country against the competition of the cheap labor of Europe is to place a tariff wall around the country which will partially exclude that competition. That is how we secure protection for the factory. But, I ask, how can you secure protection for the factory if this bill is simply designed to protect us against the labor of European gold standard countries, when the production of silver standard countries is increasing at a prodigious pace, and their competition is being made more and more effective day by day, as the gold price of silver declines?

TRUE PROTECTION.

What does true protection for this country mean? It means that we should protect every section, every interest, every class in it; that if there is any danger from the competition of cheaper labor—and all must admit it—we must protect against the competition of the Orient as well as against the labor of Europe; we must protect against the labor of Mexico, the labor of Japan, and the labor of India as well as against that of England. Otherwise you have what? You have a reduction of wages in this country to meet the competitive rates of other countries. You have a readjustment of all values; and I am sure that all of us have had enough experience during the past three years of the suffering and distress that are brought about by readjustments.

I admit that the world will go on under almost any economic condition, but it is this process of readjustment that tears the heart out of the generation in which the readjustment is accomplished. What we wish to do now in this country is to stay the fall of prices, to protect all our industries; to protect the factory, to protect the plantation, to protect the farm, to protect the mine.

How can you accomplish it more readily than by restoring silver to its old parity with gold? By doing that you double the labor cost of the farm products of the silver countries; you double the labor cost of the manufactured products of those countries; you paralyze the competition which has been so effective in the recent past, so far as our farms and plantations are concerned, and you paralyze the destructive arm that is now being raised against our manufacturing industries.

We hope to see the wheat interests and the mining interests, the cotton interests and the manufacturing interests united against the opponents of bimetallicism. For recollect that it is the dealers in money, the dealers in products, and the carriers of products that have made a union against the productive energies of the country, whether those productive energies are displayed in cotton and wool manufactures in the New England and Middle States, the iron and coal industries in Pennsylvania, and the cotton industries of the South, or in the mining of silver in the great West, and we may rest assured that this country will in time pursue a policy of enlightened self-interest. It will realize it is to its interest as a producer of over one-third of the entire silver of the world, as the greatest producing nation in the world, to stop the appreciation of gold, to stop the increase in value of every unit of this four thousand millions in gold, whose present home is three foreign countries. And with the change will come beneficial results not only to producers, but to the banking, mercantile, and railroad interests, which are now so steadily opposing us. They will realize that their prosperity is based upon the general prosperity of the entire country, and that the prosperity of this country cannot continue so long as debtor and producing nations recognize gold as the only money metal, and by their action build up its value and increase its control over the products of labor.

Into this work the Silver party enters, animated by no sectional spirit, controlled by no feeling of envy against the more prosperous, but inspired by the desire to maintain a broad American policy which shall protect the interests of American production, whether in the mining camps of the mountains, the wheat fields of the West, the cotton fields of the South, or the factories of New England.
